

This semester has not been going well. I have been lacking feedback and discipline. Because of this I did a lot of things wrong in the individual challenge and got a long way of track. I should have asked more feedback, even when I did not have much to show.

I have no good excuse for why I did what I did. Maybe I am scared to talk because I don't have enough work to show sometimes. Maybe I am too perfectionistic and waited until the perfect moment. Maybe it's a combination of multiple things. But whatever it is, I have to get over it.

In order to fix the situation I'm in I need to make a plan and goals.

First I need to talk with all my teachers every week. This is crucial in order to pass the semester.

I also need to go to school every day. Monday and Thursday online doesn't help me at all.

I hope that when I fix these things, I can get back on track and make it through this semester.
